SAMUEL NEWHOUSE LIKES RAWHIDE

CONSIDERABLE TONNAGE OF MILLING ORE IS ALREADY IN SIGHT.

The expert opinion of Samuel Newhouse is that the camp of Rawhide bears every indication of becoming one of Nevada's mining centers, says the Salt Lake Herald. He says that in Rawhide there is not a great quantity of high grade ore, but there is in sight considerable tonnage of excellent milling ore. He was pleased with the camp, and said that the prospects were bright for Rawhide. Mr. Newhouse returned from a visit to Rawhide yesterday at noon on the Los Angeles Limited.

"I was very much pleased with Rawhide," said Mr. Newhouse, "and I consider the outlook for the camp is promising. The development of the properties thus far is an excellent forerunner of what may be expected from the camp. Of course, until mines are opened up there is no one who can say positively what is to be expected. The indications and the surface showing of the Rawhide properties are favorable.

"Rawhide is suffering somewhat just now from a reaction of the recent boom. The camp was boomed a great deal at the start and is suffering somewhat because of this fact. I think that the showing made by the camp is commendable. After one has made an inspection of the properties I do not think that he can be justified in 'knocking' the camp.

"I visited a number of different leases and was pleased with the indications of ore. I did not find a great deal of shipping ore, but saw a great deal of good milling ore. In several of the shafts I could see eight or ten feet of this class of ore, ranging from $30 to $50 or $60 a ton exposed. Large veins of this ore are to be found in the properties being worked.

"In Rawhide I saw a few idle men, but I also saw a great many men at work. There was a noticeable absence of ruffianism. There were in our party several ladies, and everywhere we went we were treated with the greatest courtesy."

EMPLOYMENT MEN ARE THREATENED

SEATTLE, Wash., June 3.—Startling stories of threats of dynamite and murder on the part of the Western Federation of Miners were told this afternoon, when Mike Davis, representative in Seattle of the United Mine Workers of the Tanana, affiliated with the Western Federation, was tried on a disorderly conduct charge, growing out of his interference with employment agents who were hiring men to send north to break the Tanana and Treadwell strikes. The evidence against Davis was insufficient and Police Judge Gordon dismissed him. Davis said he would return to his task and fight to keep strikers from accepting employment. The employment agents claimed that they had been told in letters signed by the Western Federation, that unless they desist from employing men for strike-breaking purposes their offices will be wrecked with dynamite.

Stark Humes, a son of former Mayor T. J. Humes of Seattle, who is the representative here of the Treadwell people, declared that he had received letters informing him that unless he abandons his work, his child will be killed. Humes in turn informed Davis that he would hold him personally responsible if any violence is done either his child or himself. The police regard the situation between the employment agents and the miners' representatives as dangerous. Davis was severely reprimanded by the court.

BRUTAL MURDER PUZZLES POLICE

PARIS, June 3.—In spite of the affirmations of the police that the Steinhil affair belongs in the category of vulgar crimes, all the amateur detectives of Paris are advancing theories to account for the strangling to death of Adolph E. Steinhil and Mme. Jany, his mother-in-law, in Steinhil's studio last Sunday morning, and many of the Paris newspapers are pandering to the French love of the romantic sensationalism by persisting in their intimations that the crime is shrouded in deep mystery. They emphasize the conduct of the manservant Coquilla in not descending from his quarters when he heard unfamiliar sounds and the failure to follow the footprints of the assassin outside the building. The absence of any struggle, the strange positions in which the bodies were found, Mme. Steinhil's retraction of the statement that she recognize! one of the murderers as a model who had worked for her husband, together with the sudden reticence of the chief of detectives concerning the result of the examination and investigation, lend some color to the theory that sensational developments are possible. The autopsies on the bodies were held today, at the conclusion of which the examining magistrate announced that the death of the victims was due to strangulation.

The autopsies show that no struggle between the assassins and their victims took place, as the bodies were devoid of marks of violence, except where the cords had been drawn around their necks. The belief is emphasized that the perpetrators were experienced criminals.

GOLD YIELD OF ALASKA.
SEATTLE, June 3.—The Post-Intelligencer, after receiving reports from all points in the north, estimates the gold output for the coming season in Alaska at $26,000,000. The prediction is made that the coming of this stream of gold from the north will have an effect on the country similar to the manner in which the Klondike gold materially assisted in reviving the business depression following the panic of 1893.
